Errata

The following sentences were omitted from Dr. Anna M. Antonovsky's paper "Idealization and the Holding of Ideals," Volume 27, Number 3, July 1991:

Page 398, second paragraph, 5th line:

This deflection of the death instinct from the self was seen as a prerequisite for survival. Freud had also offered the idea of fusion of Eros with the death instinct as a way to hold in check the latter's destructive action.

And on page 391, 6th line, Heine should be spelled this way.
